Mr. Hepburn Speaks.

Mr. Hepburn Speaks.

The feature of the day, which was clearly of the sensational order, was the charge of Mr. Dalzell against Mr. Cockran that he worked for hire for the election of Mr. Mckinley. The denouncement of this charge and of the gentleman, who made it, was in language liter with resentment and scorn.

Mr. Hepburn referred to the criticism of the President by Mr. Kitchin yesterday. The gentleman, he said, was a member of a co-ordinate branch of the government.

In the eyes of the people, he declared.

Referring to "the alleged quotation from the President," that "there is a strain of barbarism running through the peoples of the South." Mr. Hepburn said the ples of the South." Mr. Hepburn and the gentleman had sought to place the responsibility for this barbarie spirit upon the President of the United Sintes, placing thin as one who was the advocate of lynching, and the justifier of the norrid outrages which take place in the section of the country, from which the gentleman comes. That these things did take place, Air. Hepburn and there was no denial, but the President's statement had reference to the frontier.

La Takes Demograps to Task.

He Takes Democrats to Task.

He Takes Democrats to Task.

Mr. Hepburn took the Democrats to task for inking tariff vefore the money question was settled. First he asked if it was not settled.

"No!" shouted Mr. Maddox (Georgia).

Mr. Hepburn read that part of the Democratic platform of 1896 which said that no agitation of tariff changes should be made until after the money question agos settled.

be made until after the money question was settled.
Steaking of Democratic presidential possibilities. Mr. Hepburn said Hearst, "that young glam of the West," was not liked by the leaders, so the friends of Cleveland, Gorman and Olney got together and found a man who had never uttered a single political sentiment and at once said "This is our man."

"But when the masses of the Republican party shall mime by acclamation Theodore Roosevelt (prolonged Republican applause) it will be because they know him.

When Mr. Hepourn concludes, transe (Ritchen expressed surprise at the attack on himself by the gentlemen from Onio and Iowa (Mr. Glosvenor and Mr. Hep-burn). He was their friend, and only tried to impeach the gentleman who had tried to impeace the gentleman who had assaulted them. He agreed with Mr. Grosvenor in his published estimate of Théodore Rooseevil. If the gentlemen would listen he would show them that he was the best friend they had. He had he was the best friend they had. He had quoted the President yesterday that they were politically corrupt.

"I said to myseif: I am going to rescue those gentlemen if Theodore Roosevelt expels me from this body by executive order (laughter). What thanks have I got for it? They have called me a peanut politician." Difference Between the Parties.

Difference Between the Parties.

Mr. Cockran, after discussing the tariff question, said the difference between the two parties, which was indicated in overy Republican "song," was that the Democratic party did not know what it wanted and did not know what it wanted and did not know how to get it; the Republican party knew what it wanted (laughter), and always knew how to reach out for it. The Democratic party was essentially one of divisions.

"We are going into the campatign torn with distracted feelings, many of us holding divergent views. That is a feature of Democratic procedure. That is why we are going to hold a convention. You are exposed to no such peril. Your proceedings are already arranged for you in a public building at the other end of Penissylvania Avenus."

Mr. Cockran humorously referred to a remark said to have been made by President Rossevelt about good and bad trusts. He said that naturally bad trusts were those that raised prices, but a great onslaught had been made on one which did not raise the prices—the Northern Securities Company—and it had only been compelled to change its dose. The trusts which raised prices were those which were protected by a tariff wall.

Mr. Cockran continued his argument against protection and the protective system.

Dalzell Makes Charge.

Dalzell Makes Charge.

Mr. Dalzell (Pennsylvania) asked Mr. Cockran if he held the same views when he was making Republican speeches in

Mr. Cockran responded that he never made a Republican speech in his life; that he supported McKinley when the people had forced a financial plank in the platform which met his (Gockran's) approval. "I will state that I have been informed that it was profitable to the gentleman from New York to support McKinley when he did," remarked Mr. Dalzell, amid applause and laughter on the Republican side.

"That is a statement," replied Mr. Cock-wherever there has been found mouth foul enough to utter words behind which there was no conscience. (Applaise on the Democratic side.) I challenge the gentleman, and all the cohorts of vic and crime and corruption that are em-bodied in the Republican party, to show triat the national committee ever contributed as much as my railroad fare during all of that campaign."

This was greated with prolonged cheers and applause by the Democrats.
"I do not suppose the

"I do not suppose the gentleman paid any railroad fare." said Mr. Dalzell. Mr. Cockran sa'd he paid his own ex-penses wherever he went, and continuing the challenging the gentleman now as I challenged Mr. Hanna while he was living, and as 1 now challenge every one on any side, to show where, in the last twenty years, I have not been a subscriber to. Instead of a recipient from, campaign funds. The gentleman attributes to me what he knows to be the universal custom of every Republican politician.

universal custom of every Republican politician."

This was greeted with prolonged cheers an dapplause by the Democrats.
"I can say as to myself," said Mr. Dalzell, "precisely what the gentleman has said as to himself with respect to campaigning."
"I should not have suspected the gentleman," retorted Mr. Cockran, "but it has been my experience in life that no man is quick to accuse another of an infamy unless he has become intimate with it himself." There was more ap-

There was a chorus of "Name him.

There was a chorus of "Name him, name him." on the Democratic side. "Name him, or admit that you are." Mr. Cockran said, and paused adding, "what cannot be said in this House." At this there was wild and turnultuous circering and applause on the Democratic

"Sir," thundered Mr. Cockran, turning to the speaker; "the man who makes that confession cannot interrupt me here again or come voluntarily within the range of my vision."

So veroclous was the demonstration on the Democratic side that it was some time before Mr. Cockran could resume. Describing the long reign and mistakes of the Republican party, Mr. Cockran predicted its reign would end and end now. It mattered not whether the man to lead the Democracy to victory was the one named by the New York Convention, Judge Parker, or whether the leader should be the officer who has suppressed boodle and crime in Missouri. In any event, he hoped the minority leader of the House (Mr. Williams of Mississippi), would be on the ticket. This reference provoked prolonged applause, reference provoked prolonged applause, which was joined in by the Republicans. The House then passed the bill for a ship subsidy commission by a vote of 144 to 118, and adjourned

MIDDIES ARE VICTORIOUS

They Down Washington and Lee in a Hard-Fought Game at Annapolis.

WAS A PITCHERS' BATTLE

The Clean and Fast Fielding on Both Sides Was Another Feature of the Contest.

napolis midshipmen won a hard fought victory here this afternoon from the nine of Washington and Lee College. The score was 2 to 1. The game was more of a pitchers' battle, in which Needham, of the navy, had a triffe better of the argument over Chilton. The middles, argument over Chilton. The middles, however, were unable to make any long hits off Chilton's delivery.

Though the Virginians made four errors, two of which were costly ones, and the Annapolis being faulty twice in this particular, the fielding of both teams at other stages of the game was clean and fast. Chilton, of the visitors, made a sensational catch of Theobald's hot liner in the fifth.

Kelly, who was behind the bat for Washington and Lee in yesterday's conjtest with St. John's, played in right field to-day, and Trimble caught instead.

Kelly's stick work in to-day's game was the redeeming feature of the visitors' batting, he making three clean singles out of as many times up. The fielding of Willson at first was also good, accepting sixteen of his seventen chances.

The Washington and Lee boys did not score until the seventh inning, though a runner got as far as second in each the third, fourth and sixth innings. In the runer got as far as second in each the third, fourth and sixth innings. In the seventh, however, a mighty attempt was made to score, even if they did not win, and their efforts brought forth one run. Willson led off in this inning, and was out at first, but Legore reached the first sack on Stiles's error of Shefford's throw, stole second, and reached third on Fields's passed ball. Hereford, the next at bat, was out for bunting on the third strike. Kelly, who had already made two hits, then came up and cracked out a clean single to right field, and Legore came home for the visitors' only run. In the last two innings not one of the Lexingtonians got as far as first. The middles started to score in the first. McWhorter got to first and second on Willson's error, and scored on Cohen's single. Annapol's was blanked for the next six innings, but they managed to score one more in the eighth on a wild throw by Hereford and an error by Dawson. Score:

COLLEGE SPIDERS TOOK THE GAME

Hampden-Sidney Could do Nothing With Pitcher Cardoza.

Richmond College had all its own way after the fourth inning yesterday. Up to that time the game looked like a close one. Then the local hitters pounded Montgomery for four hits, two of them for two bags each, which, together with a pass and an error by Fleming, netted five runs.
